What could be acknowledged as the first was a play produced and written by Mary Medbury MacKaye in 1906. This play, Pride and Prejudice, was performed in both New York City and London.

1906

In 1935 Helen Jerome's produced "Pride and Prejudice" – a sentimental comedy"

This was a Broadway hit and has seen many revivals in recent years at University theatre groups.

1936

This is an interesting one – in 1936 A. A. Milne adapted P&P for the London Stage under the title “Miss Elizabeth Bennet”

There was some talk about Winnie the Pooh playing Darcy – but I believe it was just talk.

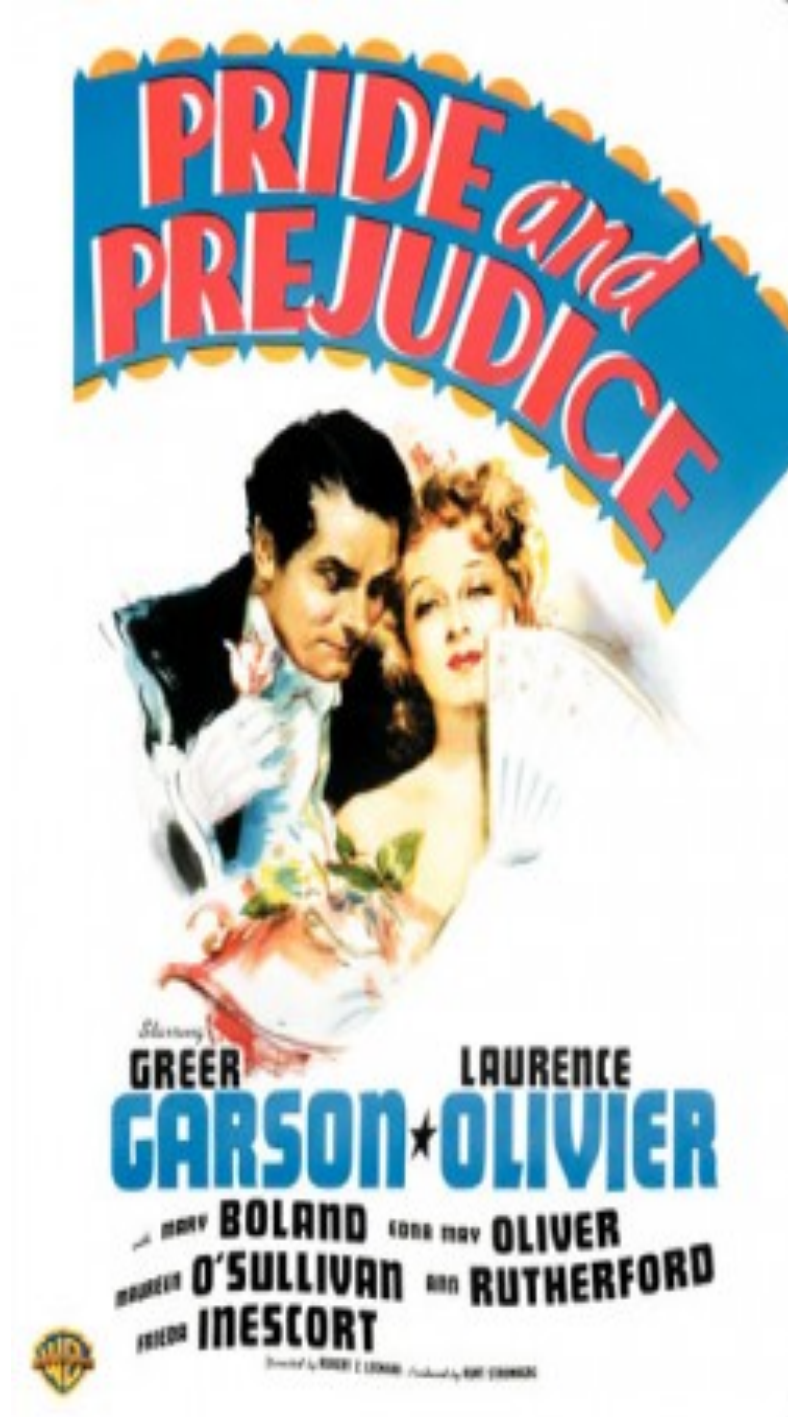

1936

Another early film of P&P was produced in 1940 with Laurence Olivier and Greer Garson – still available at CPL as are most of the novels in both print and DVD and well worth watching – it should be noted that the costumes worn were definitely NOT of that period. Probably used because they were left over from “Gone With the Wind” made in 1939.
